

Rebecca Stone Interview Notes, 39 F

Disclosure: Rebecca Stone is Brooke Simon's colleague from work

- 1) What kind of online presence do you have?
  - a) Instagram, but also lots of info from the air force and her job
- 2) What social media/account based platforms do you use most frequently?
  - a) Uses instagram to see what people do, views stories, but doesn't really post, comment, or interact other than by liking things. 15-20 min/day
- 3) Talk about your opinions surrounding online data privacy, specifically in regards to your personal data.
  - a) Tries not to put personal data into apps, but generally feels like "if they want it they can get it" from various other sources so she isn't too concerned. Still refrains from adding her birthday on facebook and uses other small measures to limit data
- 4) What knowledge do you have about the current regulations/laws of your online data?
  - a) No knowledge in this industry, but she noted that from the news it seems like people want more regulations on data privacy
- 5) Do you know about/use the options currently for changing privacy settings on your social media app? Do you think the options are good enough?
  - a) instagram private account... otherwise no info. doesn't seem like the options are very good though.
- 6) What data do you care about companies/other users having the most?
  - a) Health info and financial information. Other than that, not too worried
- 7) What knowledge do you have about terms and conditions/privacy policy on the social media platforms you use?
  - a) She doesn't really know/doesn't often read these. She says she occasionally skims but rarely.
- 8) Depending on if you read/don't read these documents, why?
  - a) They are too confusing and long. She mentioned that when there are policy updates, they do not highlight what changes have been made so it makes it hard because she doesn't want to read the WHOLE thing again to find the changes.
- 9) Are you interested in learning more about how your data is collected and used on these platforms?
  - a) Yes, she is interested if it becomes easier to read. She noted that in her line of work (medical industry) the terms/user policy must be written at '5th grade reading level'. She thinks something like this would be really good for privacy policy
